NO. 47.

MEETING OF THE CITY TRUSTEES

BUSY SESSION OF THREE

Improvement of Windsor Lane Among Other Things on the Program for the Near Future

Trustees Graham, Hosmer and Pegler held a busy session of the municipal board last evening. With Mayor Jones in the east and Trustee Steinberger in the mountains, there was a bare quorum on hand to transact business, but they managed to put in the time to good advantage, adjourning just in time for Trustee Pegler to catch the 10:30 car to return to Redondo Beach for the rest of his outing. Trustee Hosmer was made chairman pro tem.

The ordinance establishing official grades on Windsor Lane was read and adopted. This is the precursor of proceedings for the improvement of this short street, the ordinance of intention having been also introduced last evening. The condition of the street has caused it to be something of an eyesore in the central part of the city for some time. No petition asking the work has been presented to the trustees but a number of owners of abutting property favor the improvement.

Ordinances were introduced ordering the improvement of Hermosa avenue from Highland to Grand View; of Highland from Baldwin to Mountain Trail; and of Carter from Baldwin to Auburn. A communication was read from A. D. Hawks withdrawing the protest against the improvement of this portion of Highland. The protest was insufficient to block the work, but the withdrawal renders even less likely the possibility of any subsequent legal entanglements.

On account of the removal from the city of W. E. Bechtelheimer a vacancy has been left on the local Board of Health. With Captain J. A. Osgood in the east only three members are left in the city, and that only part of the time, so it is often impossible to get a quorum together. Dr. R. H. Mackerras requested that the vacancy be filled at once and Mr. A. N. Adams was appointed by the trustees. The selection is a good one from every point of view. His thorough knowledge of the plumbing business will make it possible for the board to give attention to some sanitary regulations which have been somewhat neglected in the past.

The house numbering map prepared some time ago by J. D. Mackerras was officially approved by the board. An ordinance was introduced providing for a system of numbering in accordance with the official map, the numbers to be assigned by the city clerk, with a penalty attached for failure of house owners to have their houses numbered.

A communication was received from the volunteer fire department as follows:

We, the members of the Sierra Madre Volunteer Fire Department feel that under the existing circumstances we can do no good as a department and therefore have decided to disband. Yours respectfully, J. A. Gilbert, Greer Caskey, Irving Caskey, Jack Richey, Harvey H.

BUDDING PEACH TREES

Budding can be used to propagate plums, cherries, apples and pears, but it is used most commonly with peaches. The operation is very simple and is easily performed.

If a man wished to start an orchard of budded peach trees, he would plant seeds of any strain which is hardy in his locality. Near the end of either the first or second season's growth he would bud them. Peaches are usually big enough to bud during the first season of their growth, while with cherries, plums, apples, and pears, it is better to wait for the second season.

Budding is simply a form of grafting, only it is done usually during July and August instead of in the spring. From the middle of August to the first of September is a good time to bud peach trees. During late summer the bark is loose and it is easy to separate it from the wood and insert the bud.

Buds are got from good, healthy trees of the variety desired. What are known as bud sticks are cut from healthy wood of this year's growth. The buds with bark attached are cut off this stick in the shape of a shield; it is a good plan to leave the petiole of each leaf attached to protect the bud and to act as a handle. A T cut is now made in the bark of the stock on the north side, two or three inches above the ground. The flaps of bark are separated from the wood, the bud is pushed in, and the flaps are bound together with raffia over the edges of the bud.

Late in the season the raffia should be loosened to avoid girdling the tree and the stock should be cut off an inch or two above the bud. The next spring all buds other than the one inserted must be rubbed off. With all nourishment thus directed to it, the inserted bud makes a very rapid growth.—Wallace's Farmer.

Steinberger, A. L. Robinson, Frank Biederman, J. L. Dunn, J. G. Adelmeyer, A. Robertson.

Sierra Madre, Aug. 12, 1910.

To the Honorable City Council:

The above resolution was passed at a meeting of the fire department this evening. Yours respectfully,

IRVING CASKEY, Secretary.

No explanation was vouchsafed as to what were the "existing circumstances" making useless the continuance of the fire department. It will be remembered, however, that a request was made by the department at a recent meeting of the trustees for some alterations and repairs to the hose cart and also for an addition to the present hose house large enough for a recreation room. The work on the hose cart was authorized but the trustees stated at the time that they could not expend anything on enlargements for the fire house or anything else not absolutely and immediately necessary until this year's tax money begins to come in. Possibly these are the "circumstances" referred to. There has been some talk of dissension among members of the department and it is possible the movement to disband has more beneath it than appears on the surface. It has been suggested that some of the members have been rather anxious to disband in hopes that it might be possible to reorganize the department more along the lines on which they think it ought to be run.

DESIGN FOR EXPOSITION SEAL

One thousand dollars in cash is the offer made by the Directors of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition Company, to artists and designers the world over for an Exposition Seal. It must be of a character suitable for use as a poster, a crest for stationery, or an Exposition Button, and should typify the completion of the Panama Canal and the celebration of that event proposed to be held in San Francisco in 1915. Finished drawings or paintings should reach the Exploitation and Publicity Committee in San Francisco not later than October 15th. It is desired that as wide announcement as possible of this offer be made, that artists everywhere may be inspired to make suggestions and send in their designs by this date. A number of suggestions have already been made and these will be held for consideration when the competition closes.

The oft-repeated story of Washington's profanity at the battle of Monmouth is strenuously denied in Marion Harland's autobiography, and upon the best authority—that of a revolutionary veteran, Stirling Smith by name, who was uncle to Marion Harland's grandfather. "He did not swear," the old war horse would thunder when irreverent youngsters retailed the slander in his hearing. "I was close behind him—and I can tell you, sir, we rode fast—when what should we meet running away, lickety-split from the field of battle with the British almost at their heels, but Gen'l Lee and his men. Then, with that, Gen'l Washington, speaking out loud and sharp—says he, 'Gen'l Lee! in God's name, what is the meaning of this ill-timed prudence?' Now, you see, Gen'l Lee, he was mighty high-spirited. So he speaks up as haughty as the Gen'l had done, and says he: 'I know of no one who has more of that most damnable virtue than your Excellency.' So you, young man, it was Gen'l Lee that swore and not Gen'l Washington. Don't you ever let me hear that lie again!"—Exchange.

The head of a manufacturing concern who built up his business from nothing by his own dogged and persistent toil, and who has never felt that he could spare the time for a vacation, not long ago, however, decided that he was getting along in years, and that he was entitled to a rest. Calling his son into the library, he said: "Tom, I've worked pretty hard for quite a while now and have done very well, so I have decided to retire and turn the business over to you. What do you say?" The young man pondered the situation gravely. Then a bright idea seemed to strike him. "I say, dad," he suggested, "how would it do for you to work a few years longer and then the two of us retire together?"

A physician was driving along the street when his horse took fright and ran away. He was thrown violently to the sidewalk, and knocked senseless. Presently he recovered a little from his unconsciousness, and noticing the crowd which had gathered about him, remarked: "What's the matter, gentleman? Anybody hurt? I'm Doctor B—Can I be of any service?"

AT THE CLUB HOUSE

Enjoyable Midsummer Social Affair Given by Ladies of the Club Building Association

The "at home" given by the ladies of the Woman's Club Building Association at the Club House Wednesday afternoon proved to be a most delightful affair. It was a success both socially and financially.

Considering the time of year and the resultant absence from the city of so many people, the attendance was very gratifying.

An excellent musical program was heard with pleasure by the guests. A social hour was enjoyed afterward, during which dainty refreshments were served by the club ladies.

Following is given the musical program, the accompaniments being by Mrs. Guy H. Johnson, except as otherwise noted:

Piano—Poem Erotik..... Grieg
Miss Hazel Hill.

Violin, Cello and Piano—Bacarelle, from Love Tales of Hoffman.

Miss Edith Blumer, Mr. Herbert Ingraham, Mrs. Johnson.

Vocal—a, There Let Me Rest, Edwin Greene; b, Roses in June.

Mrs. Harry Hawxhurst.

HONORED AT SAN DIEGO

Rev. J. M. Campbell has been enjoying a short outing at LaJolla in company with Dr. Henry Kingman of Claremont. While there Dr. Campbell was the guest of honor at a gathering of the Friar's Club of San Diego, given at the University Club of that city. He returned home this week for a brief stop, going on to Claremont. After next Sunday he will return home ready for duty. Next Sunday the pulpit at the First Congregational church will be occupied by Rev. George Morrison, pastor of the Northside Congregational church of Pasadena.

NOW LAYING GAS MAINS

Construction work for the Piedmont Gas Company is progressing in the direction of Sierra Madre. Already the pipes have been laid about a mile this side of Monrovia. Mr. C. S. S. Forney, president of the company, with Messrs. Sharp and Scott, who are in charge of the construction work, were in Sierra Madre yesterday. They said the mains would be brought to Sierra Madre within two weeks and work will then be pushed as rapidly as possible in extending the system all over the city.

Roy Emery, who has been confined at his home with an attack of bronchitis, has now recovered and is able to resume his business in Los Angeles.

THOSE EXPOSITION BONDS

If San Francisco really wishes to spend $12,500,000 of her own money on an exposition Southern California can well afford to spend her share of $5,000,000 in state bonds for which Governor Gillett has set the legislative wheels in motion. Probably the southland would benefit more than would San Francisco. Expositions are notoriously expensive to the cities where they are held, while but few eastern visitors to a big fair at San Francisco would fail to include a more or less lengthy visit to the south in the itinerary. The following editorial from the California Weekly contains much food for thought, especially coming from a San Francisco sanctum:

"The Panama-Pacific exposition project is taking definite form. By private subscription $7,500,000 is to be pledged, the state of California is to be asked to vote $5,000,000, the city and county of San Francisco $5,000,000, making $17,500,000 for one grand 'Blowout' that will last half a year!

"That it will do good no one can question. That the same amount of money could be made to do ten, twenty, forty, a hundred-fold more good few who have the power to put pencil to paper intelligently will dispute. Only the effervescent, hotheaded, vociferating boomers will attempt it, and with them calm discussion is not to be looked for.

"Let us see what might be done with these three several sums if put to wiser uses. San Francisco's industries and her commerce languish. Where there were a hundred iron workers before the fire there are now not a score, perhaps not ten. Our oversea commerce has taken to itself wings and has not returned. Put that $7,500,000 to the credit of the Chamber of Commerce, with instructions to expend a million a year until exhausted in opening up trade with China, the Philippines, Australia and India; in studying the needs of those and other markets and finding methods of supplying them from this port; devote that seven and a half millions in money, and seven and a half years in time, to finding out how to make a dollar in San Francisco, otherwise than by retail trade, running a hotel, a restaurant, or a saloon, with the night life wide open, and the results will discount the Panama-Pacific exposition so far as to make its promoters deny that they ever entertained such an idea in their minds.

"Now take the state's $5,000,000 donation. Send our congressional delegation back to Washington with a proposal that, if the national government will put up dollar for dollar with the state, the landowners will contribute enough more to reclaim to settlement the million acres of swamp and overflowed lands in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys. No richer land lays out of doors. It will make 50,000 twenty-acre farms and add a population of 250,000 to San Francisco's back country, a never failing source of wealth. With a tenth of the expenditure of energy that will be required to get up the great exposition this result can be achieved and our great inland valleys be made a double cornucopia pouring wealth into the lap of San Francisco.

"Take the $5,000,000 in bonds proposed to be devoted to the exposition by San Francisco! Devote it to such an extension of the Geary street railway system as will make accessible the near-by districts of the peninsula for the accommodation of citizens. Or establish playgrounds with it, small parks and boulevards, that San Francisco may be not only the city beautiful, but the city homelike, clean and moral. The expenditure of the credit would furnish as much labor devoted to these purposes as to another, and give the city an enviable reputation among men.

"And there would be no period of reaction to go through, no surplus population to float away, no useless hotels to injure legitimate hotel trade. What San Francisco needs is something like the '1915' booster spirit that has taken hold of Boston. That would be something like.

"But what can one little weekly paper do to stem the tide of misapplied capital and enthusiasm! It can have its say, that's all, and, having had it, can take hold with the rest and do its best for what the rest think best. California can better afford to vote $5,000,000 for a 1915 'Blowout' than San Francisco can afford to vote another $5,000,000 to the same end, and then bear its share of what the state votes. Having spent a few days at the fair our visitors will hie away to Southern California to spend as many weeks there as they have spent days here before going home, and they will spend dollars in other portions of the state to dimes in San Francisco. Everywhere, outside of San Francisco, it will be much to gain and relatively little to lose, while in San Francisco there will be much to lose and relatively little to gain compared to what might be realized could the same energy and enthusiasm, the same capital and enterprise, be directed to wiser ends.

"But let there be one Panama exposition or none! Anyhow, stick a peg there to stay."

WHAT HAPPENED TO

MARK TWAIN'S UNCLE

At an annual celebration of Independence Day at the Hotel Cecil by Americans in London, Mark Twain presented his audience with a characteristic bit of humor. "Our Ambassador," said he, "has spoken of the Fourth of July, and the noise it makes. We have a double Fourth of July in America. We honor it all through the daylight hours, and when the night comes we dishonor it. Just at this hour the pandemonium would be about to begin. More than the noise, there would be people crippled and killed, all through the permission which we give to irresponsible boys to play with firearms and fire-crackers. Really we destroy more property on the night of the Fourth of July than the whole of the United States was worth a hundred and twenty-five years ago, and to thousands it is turned into a day of mourning.

"I have suffered in that way myself. I had an uncle in Chicago—as good an uncle as ever I had, and I have had a lot of them. He opened his mouth to express his patriotism, and a rocket went down his throat. And before that man could ask for a drink of water to quench the thing it had scattered him all over the forty-five States. Really this is true. Twenty-four hours after that it was raining buttons on the Atlantic seaboard. A man cannot have a disease like that and be entirely cheerful during the rest of his life. These things grieve me, but don't let them make you sad."—Exchange.

SANITARY INSPECTING ENGINEER

State Employs Officials to Assist Cities and Towns with Local Problems

Owing to the number of requests from town health authorities for assistance in stamping out typhoid fever epidemics and for advice on problems of sewage disposal, the State Board of Health is inaugurating a division of field work which is to be put in the hands of an engineer inspector.

When the assistance of the State Board of Health is asked in cases of typhoid fever epidemics the engineer inspector will be sent to aid the town or county health officers to determine the source of infection and help stamp out the outbreak. When desired this official also will make a preliminary sanitary survey of the town, mapping out the district in reference to the source of water supply, and defects in system of sewage disposal which should be immediately rectified, and the feasibility and approximate cost of correction. This branch of the work is preliminary and advisory. No attempt is made to supply to towns the engineering services necessary for making formal cost estimates and supervising construction.

The State health board finds that many complex situations have arisen because municipalities have failed to secure advice from qualified sanitary engineers. Towns have gone to great expense in establishing sewage plants that are not at all adapted to the situation, and which would not have been recommended if a sanitary engineer had been consulted. A frequent error of this kind is the installation of a septic tank without making provisions for supplementary purification. The septic process is only a preliminary stage of sewage disposal, and the effluent should be run through filtration beds before being allowed to enter streams.

Last year there were approximately 200 less deaths from typhoid fever than there were in 1906. As not more than one case of typhoid fever in ten ordinarily results in death, it is computed that there were 2,000 less cases of typhoid fever last year than in 1906. The expenditure for the services of nurses and physicians in a case of typhoid fever is seldom less than $300.00, and sometimes amounts to many thousands of dollars. Without taking account of loss of time and impaired earning capacity, and taking the very low estimate of $300.00 as a basis, it will be seen that the 2,000 less typhoid cases represent a saving of $600,000.00. The saving of lives and expenditure of money is due in a large measure to the installation of sewage disposal plants that prevent the hardy typhoid bacillus from passing into the streams that supply California towns with water.

"You can't guess what sister said about you just before you came in, Mr. High-collared," said little Johnnie.

"I haven't an idea in the world, Johnnie."

"That's it. You guessed it the very first time."—Exchange.

A CHARGE FOR EXTRA SERVICE

The proprietor of a restaurant a few days ago entered one of the clothing houses where a specialty is made of suits for boys and angrily inquired for the proprietor. When that gentleman appeared, the restaurant man held out a bill, asking in tones that were fuzzy with hoar frost,

"Will you kindly explain this little matter?"

"What's the trouble? It is a bill for sixteen dollars. You bought a suit of clothes here, didn't you?"

"I did. The price was twelve dollars. How does it happen that I get a bill for four dollars more? What kind of book-keeping do you have done here?"

"Our bookkeeping is first class. Not

RUBBER?

Rudyard Kipling has been unaccountably silent for a long time, and now we know the reason. He has been inventing. Would it not be possible, he has been asking himself, to evolve some type of air-cushioned body armor which would give the airman at least one chance for his life when he has to drop? He thinks it would, and gives his reasons, says the Argonaut:

As far as I can make out at present, men go up with less protection, except against cold, than the catcher of a baseball team, and with less body guards than an American football player. A little protection about the head and shoulders might make all the difference between life and death at the moment of the smash.

I suggest a helmet of rubber inflated on the crown of the head and round the back and over the collar-bone—the whole need not be much heavier than a wickerwork singlestick mask. What you want is the protection of the neck against a backward or forward wrench.

The "cub" reporter had gone with the dramatic critic to see his first rehearsal, and after gazing at Miss Brown for nearly a whole act, said timidly to the older man, "I wonder whether any girl could be as innocent as Miss Brown looks. 'You might ask her,' the old man replied. The "cub" said he'd rather not; he didn't want to ask so leading a question, but the older and more cynical representative of the press took her back up on the stage to see the young lady. The "cub" gathered his nerve and asked: "Miss Brown, could—er—any girl be as innocent as you look?" "Yes, I think she could, but—she wouldn't want to be."

AT THE THEATERS

Belasco

When Charles Rann Kennedy wrote "The Servant in the House," he performed something akin to a miracle; he wrote as human, loveable a sermon in the guise of a compelling dream as has been conceived since the days when saints produced literature. This drama of the essentials of beneficence will be produced Monday evening at the Belasco theater for the first time by any stock company.

Hobart Bosworth has been especially engaged for the role of Manson, the butler, and this splendidly equipped actor may be expected to give a performance at once thoroughly intelligent, forceful, dignified and strongly dramatic. The role of Robert Smith, the drainman, will be in the hands of Frank Camp, and, while this actor's previous work with the Belasco company has been along the line of the stage villains, his contributions to "The Servant in the House" is pretty certain to be one of the most expertly drawn characterizations of the performance. William Yerance will be seen as the Reverend James Ponsonby Makeshifte, the Bishop of Lancashire. Harry Andrews will be the vicar of the presentation; Richard Barbee will come into his first real chance with the Belasco company in the part of Rogers, the page-boy, Helen Sullivan will enact the part of Auntie and Rosina Henley will play the young niece.

Majestic

The coming week will end the darkness at the Majestic Theater, which will open with a matinee Monday, September 5th, Labor Day, with the great farce comedy, "The Lottery Man." This will inaugurate the new era of big productions at the Majestic, the John Cort bookings having been now arranged for what promises to be one of the biggest theatrical seasons Los Angeles has ever seen. "The Lottery Man" is by Rida Johnson Young, author of "Brown of Harvard" and other successful comedies, and will be given with a complete metropolitan cast.

Burbank

Another of the monumental Burbank Theater stock productions will be seen next week. This is "Salvation Nell," to be given for the first time by any stock company in Los Angeles. In this production A. Byron Beasley will return to the cast, after about two months' vacation.

"Salvation Nell," written by E. B. Sheldon, has been one of the greatest dramatic successes of the last decade. Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske starred in it for several seasons, and only recently has it been released for stock purposes. It is a story of the work done by the Salvation Army in redeeming the unfortunate from their degradation. Nell is a poor drudge, the consort of a bully, Jim Platt. This man is sent to prison for killing another man in a saloon brawl, and the Salvation Army takes Nell from the scenes of squalor. Eight years pass; Nell has become a useful worker among her former associates, and the Army major falls in love with her. Just then Jim, having served his term, comes back, and tries to force Nell to live with him again on their former terms. She is equally determined to raise him to her level, and the struggle of the drama begins.

Miss Rambeau will have one of her greatest roles in the part in which Mrs. Fiske starred, "Salvation Nell." A. Byron Beasley will play Jim Platt, in which he should equal his greatest successes, such as his Joe Brooks in "Paid in Full." The cast is an unusually long one, and the scenic settings will be the heaviest of any piece put on at the Burbank for months.

A DEAF MAN'S COURTSHIP

The "Deaf Times" prints a story of two men on a street corner who were seen talking on their hands. Their conversation ran thus:—

"I want your advice."

"I shall be happy to oblige you."

"Well, you know I'm in love with Mabel. At last I made up my mind to propose to her. Last night I made the attempt."

"And she refused you?"

"That is what I am coming to. I don't know whether she did or not. You see, I was somewhat embarrassed, and the words seemed to stick in my hands. And there she sat, as demure as a dove. Finally my fingers stuck together, and I could not say a word. Then Mabel got up and lowered the gas."

"Well?"

"Well, what is bothering me is this: why did Mabel lower the gas—to encourage me and relieve my embarrassment, or so that she could not see me talk and so stop my proposal?"—Ex.

CORRECT RECORDS

All world's harness race records were eclipsed at North Randall track, Cleveland, August 12, when Uhlan, black son of Bingen and Blonde, driven by Doc Tanner, trotted a mile in the prenom-nal time of 1:58¾ to sulky. Paced by a runner, which at no time headed the dashing trotter, Uhlan circled the fastest track in the world, and accomplished an unprecedented feat for light harness bred horses. The mile of 1:58½ by Lou Dillon, the pacing performance of Dan Patch of 1:55, and all other world's records had been beaten. Lou Dillon's record of 1:58½ was made in October at Memphis, with a runner in front to serve as a windshield. Dan Patch's performance of 1:55 was made under a similar arrangement at Hamline, Minnesota, in 1906. The fastest mile ever paced without a wind shield in front is jointly held by Audobon Boy, Star Pointer and Minor Heir at 1:59¼. The fastest mile ever trotted by a gelding in the open until Uhlan's last three performances of 2:02¾, :01, and 1:58¾, was held by Major Delmar at 2:03¾, and behind wind shield of 1:59¾. At Columbus, in 1901, Cresceus established a world's record for trotting stallions of 2:02¼. Uhlan is owned by C. K. G. Billings, and was bought last fall for $35,000.
